NOW FOR THE FRUIT PALACE

The Horticultural State Fair Exhibit.

CIRCULAR ISSUED BY THE COMMITTEE

Soliciting Assistance From Oregon Fruit Growers.

TO FRUIT GROWERS. The undersigned were appointed a committee to receive volunteer contributions of choice fruits for the Fruit Palace exhibit at the State Fair.

There will be no money spent by the committee buying fruit to decorate the Fruit Palace with this year, but it relies entirely upon the combined efforts of those who grow fruit.

At a low estimate two tons of fruit will be required. The entire building inside and outside should be covered with our most beautiful fruits.

The committee will be to considerable expense to get up a souvenir pamphlet containing the name of each contributor, description of fruit and where grown.

The state board and business men of Salem have furnished the means to display the fruit and make it an artistic exhibit.

The fair will begin at the state fair ground at Salem, Monday, September 11, and all contributions of fruit must be in the hands of the committee or on the grounds by Friday or Saturday, the 8th or 9th, and not later than Monday the 11th.

The committee is satisfied that enough fruit will go to waste in Oregon to build many such palaces as that contemplated.

Let us break up the apathy that has so long afflicted Oregon to her material detriment. Let us show all who visit our state fair that Oregon is the greatest fruit producing country in the world.

CITY SUPERINTENDENT.

A Salem paper says: "When the school board selects a man for the position of school superintendent, they should not be compelled to go outside of the city. There are lots of good men here who are amply qualified for the position—men who pay taxes to keep up our public schools.

By all means, a place should be made for some one that lives within the city limits. Is not this a contemptible doctrine? The people pay their school taxes for education, not to accommodate some one. If a city superintendent is engaged the school board will probably employ the best equipped person from an educational standpoint that the salary they can give can procure.

Congressman Hermann has been appointed on the committee of rivers and harbors by Speaker Crisp, while Congressman Ellis is given a place on that of public lands.

Roseburg Review, Dem: R. J. Hendricks, for nine years the able editor of the Salem Statesman, has temporarily severed his connection with the management of that paper, to take the position of superintendent of the State Reform school. C. B. Irvine, who becomes managing editor in his place, has the newspaper ability to keep the Statesman fully abreast of the times, and up to its high standard as a disseminator of news.

DOG EAT DOG. FIRST BILL COLLECTOR: "How's business?" SECOND B. C.: "First-rate. Everybody in Salem is paying up wherever I go."

FIRST B. C.: "That's good. Suppose you pay me a bill that Smith has left in my hands for collection." SECOND B. C.: "I'll exchange with you a bill of Smith's I hold for collection against you."

Both conclude that they would not settle Smith's bills and depart in opposite directions to collect from other people.

THE SPY.

Night closed upon the American encampment. A solemn stillness dwelt around. No sound of mirth or jollity was heard, for the patriots of America, the conquerors of Burgoyne and Cornwallis, without food and without shelter, looked forward to that gloomy period as not far distant when they should be compelled to submit to the power of the oppressor.

"This is true," replied the general. "I will force no man to undertake such a duty against his will. But this is the hour of our country's peril. A moment may decide her destiny. You are an officer, and therefore ought not to be required to undertake this office, but you alone are qualified, and on your decision the fate of your country may depend. Reflect, and if the cause is worth the sacrifice of your life depart and take such precautions as you may deem necessary."

He bowed and left the apartment. The officer stood transfixed. When, having slowly recovered, he returned to his quarters, his cheek was flushed, his step hasty, and he was evidently in great agitation.

They had not proceeded more than a mile before the sky began to overcast, the mud arose in its strength and blew with such force that nothing could be heard but the groaning of the forests as their huge trunks bent to the blast.

Steadily they proceeded on their way, congratulating themselves upon the uproar of the elements, as most likely to favor their purpose. Mile after mile did they traverse the country, and they began to fear they had lost the road, when, on turning a corner, they found themselves directly before a large watchfire.
